ment has rebuilt) is particularly striking, for here, at one glance, we can learn something of the ravages of war. The great military hospital is torn open and split in every direction; no longer acting as a blessing for those in distress, it stands a withered and a blasted monument to the fierce passions of men. In front are the earth-works which obtained a world-wide reputation—now uprooted heaps of worthless soil. Standing on the still existing fragment of masonry in the Malakoff, one sees to the left, far over in the landscape, a new Greek church being built. the still existing fragment of masonry in the Malakoff, one sees to the left, far over in the landscape, a new Greek church being built. It commemorates the thousands of Russian syldiers who lie interred around. More to the front stands the obelisk which marks which marks in the front stands the obelisk which marks in the front stands the obelisk which marks the front stands the front stands are developments. The public conscience has been so degraded and deadened by the abominations of this government for the two.

The end is not yet. We have only to await developments. The public conscience has been so depanded and deadened by the abominations of this government for the latter is regarded as the more amazing. where the little signpost tells us so many French soldiers sleep. Their stations for attack now form their tombs. Far up on the right is Catheart's Hill, on the bleak to of which lie some of the bravest and noblest of our land. Around their lowly resting-place the wall, which had fallen into decay, has been lately repaired by Colonel Gowen, has been lately repaired by Coloner Gowen, but as the stones are put together without mortar, they may at any time fall again. Inside it looks neglected and uncared for, as if they who slept beneath had served our turn, and were to be thought of no more.

Further on towards lokermann, we have another graveyard; its walls, built up of loose stones, are low, and form an utterly insufficient protection to the mounds within. Its monuments and tombstones, made of friable sandstone, are becoming worn with Its monuments and tombstones, made of friable sandstone, are becoming worn with the weather. It is thus especially with the headstone of Captain Headley Vicar; the hittle side stones, too, of this grave are knocked about and the flowers all removed, except one wall-llower. From other tombs the crosses are broken, and the general appearance of the whole is that of gross neglect. On the road to Balakiava there are several little English burial-grounds in different states of preservation, but at the bend of the road, in the centre of the famous valley, there is one, and its wall is entirely broken down. Out of it, as the story goes, were dug the bones among which was found the purse with 25 sovereigns; hence the reason for other graves being also opened and rifled. Whether among the scores of tons of boues which lie ready for shipment at Sebastapol there may be human bones, it seems impossible to decide; some persons of information affirming it, while others deny it. Nor will the question be finally set at rest till some one of competent knowledge be sent to make a seguching, investigation. rest till some one of competent knowledge be sent to make a searching investigation. To take charge of the burial grounds, Captain Mante, a Russian officer, has been already[appointed by our Government, at salary of £400 per annum He has now been in office some time; but either from indifference or dislike of his new post, no effort seems to have been made by him to work a grandlying the existing exils. It effort seems to have both made by him wards remedying the existing evils. It would be well to associate with him some Englishman who would take an interest in the matter; or, what would be much better, to replace him by a respectable English

The Washington correspondent of the Louisyille Journal draws a startling picture Democratic Administration at Washington. The corruption and fraud connected with the government of older countries continued through many centuries, pales before that now being brought to light in the great Reof mistake, that out of more than three million of dollars, nearly one million is gone. The capital is wonder-struck at the intelligence which greets it as it awakes to the duties of the quiet Sabbath morning—wender-struck, although enveloped in daily transpiring wonders. But is it more astounding that a man who disavows allegiance to a government, and the employee of another man who actively does the same, should have abstracted a million of Government money, than that he should have failed to abstract the three millions that remained? In the view of some men in this very city, the latter is regarded as the more amazing the latter is regarded as the more amazing and what is really wrong. Responsible public trusts have been committed to in-famous men, and the result has been inev-

A TRUCULENT TRAITOR .- The editor of the Charleston Mercury (who, by the way is a Massachusetts man), wants to see blood He is not satisfied with empty speeches and newspaper articles from demagogues and scribblers; but longs to see the fair land of South Carolina drenched with human gore. It is all right with such traitors as long as the blood to be shed does not belong to them:

first blow, full in the face of her insulter. Let the United States Government bear, or return at their good will, the blow still tingling about her ears—the fruit of her own bandit temerity. We would not exchange or recall that blow for millions! It has wiped out a half a century of scorn and outrage. Again South Carolina may be proud of her listoric fame and ancestry, without a blush upon her cheek for her own present honor. The haughty echo of her cannon has ere this reverberated from Maine to Texas, through every hamlet of the North and down along the great waters of the Southwest. Le decree has gone forth. Upon every acre of the peaceful soil of the South armed men will spring up, as the sound breaks upon their ears; and it will be found that every word of our insolent foes has indeed been a dragon's tooth, sown for their destruction. And though grisly and trait orous ruflians may call on the dogs of war, and treacherous politians may lend their aid in deceptions, South Carolina will stand under her own Palmetto tree, unterrified by the snarling growls or assaults of the one, undeceived or deterred by the wily machinations of the other. And if the red seal of blood be still lacking to the parchment of Louisyille Journal draws a startling picture tions of the other. And if the red seal of the closing scenes of the last days of the blood be still lacking to the parchment of Democratic Administration at Washington. they shall have-and blood enough to stamp it all in red. For, by the God of our Fathers, the soil of South Carolina "shall be free!"

> COLD COMFORT FROM FRANCE. - The Journal des Debats, speaking of the application of South Carolina to the Emperor of France, says:

There is no doubt but that the Southern States carnestly desire to secure the countenance of France; and what shall we do in the matter? We have already done far too much in aiding formerly the American States to obtain their independence. Louis XVI was rewarded only with the ingratitude of the Americans, and the revolutionary contagion brought over by our officers was speedily inoculated throughout the whole of France.

* * And shall we lend our strength to this liberal movement? We have no interest in doing so. The Slave States would not come any quicker to our assistance, while the Northern States would harbor towards us an inveterate rancor. Now these latter States are more numerous, rich and populous than the future Confederacy of the South can ever be. It is the North principally which is the customer for our silks and articles of luxury, and which sends us flour in exchange. Every mark of sympathy eight of the Slave States. silks and articles of luxury, and which sends us flour in exchange. Every mark of sympathy given by France to the Slave States would be followed by commercial reprisals by the Northern States, and tariff and custom-house duties would soon interfere with our products. Let us, therefore, remain neutral in regard to dissensions which do not affect us. Let us leave the Americans to weaken themselves by quarrels, and show to the world the impotence of republican forms to found a solid and permanent government. This is the case, if ever, in which to apply the principle of non-intervention.

BAD LEGS, BAD BREASTS, AND ULCERS .-DAD LEGS, DAD DREASTS, AND ULGERS.— The treatment erroneously pursued in these cases, is to drive the disease inwards, thus making matters far werse than by allowing it to take its natural course, as it only breaks ont elsewhere with an aspect ten times more dreadful than before. Holloway's celebrated Ointment and Pilis, however, act in conjuction, the one internally and the other externally, and by the conjoint action of these two inestimable specifies, all descriptions of external diseases are specified and indically external diseases are speedily and radically removed, even when all other means fail.

Imprisonment for Debt.

We have time and again alluded to the barbarous law on our statute book which consigns an honest debtor hopelessly to prison, there to pine away in a loathsome room, breathing a fetid atmosphere-a pensioner on the public purse-without such generous food as the humblest enjoy, and, in fact, to rot in jail till friends either satisfy the debt, or the hard-hearted creditor relents. The law for imprisonment for debt is one of the last remnants of a barbarous age, when trade and enterprise were the exception, and not the rule. In the enlightened, philanthropic, enterprising and commercial age in which we exist, all liberal nations have modified or repealed their laws on the subject, and confined imprisonment to the fraudulent, and not to the honest debtor. Where nations, or states, or provinces have not repealed their laws for imprisonment for debt, they have, by insolvent laws, afforded the debtor an opportunity to obtain his liberty by appealing to some insolvent court, or justice having jurisdiction under the statute. In this Colony we have no insolvent law, no bankrupt law; but imprisonment, for debt is enforced with all the hard-hearted rigor of the most barbarous age. Up to a late date debtors were incarcerated with criminals of the deepest dye. They were lodged in cells in which they could scarcely turn round, without light, fuel, or ordinary comforts. Through public opinion expressed through the press and indorsed by several Grand Juries, such degradation has been partially abated, and a debtor's room fitted up, which, though a palace in comparison with the debtors' quarters formerly, yet it is but a vile substitute for the home of an honest man. We have said that we have no insolvent law, no bankrupt law. A decision of the Supreme Court in the case of Jones said we had; but it turns out that the decision is wrong. A man, an American, is now lying in jail, and has been incarcerated there for ten weeks. He has offered to give up all his property; assign for the benefit of the creditors who imprison him; and yet he is told there is no insolvent or bankrupt court to release him. No fraud is alleged; but his creditors will not a cept the assignment and release him withou payment of the debt. What kind of a community have we here? Are we barbarians? Have we no human feeling? Shall we hopelessly consign every debtor to a vile jail for the term of his natural life, because he is unable to pay his debts? The felon is sent to prison for a fixed period for warring against the laws which society has imposed for selfpreservation. He can look forward to its expiration to breathe the free air of liberty; or he may by discreet conduct in the interim secure for himself a free and unconditional pardon. The debtor, however, under our law is treated worse than the vilest felon. There is no hope of pardon for good behavior; no hope of release at the expiration of a month or a year; none till he is released by Death himself. If the creditor is vindictive, or will not relent, the debtor must rot in prison; his doom is worse than that of a felon. From every consideration of humanity, christianity, or civilization, we are called upon to blot out such a barbarous law from our statute book.

Shall we put the Colony to the expense of providing even poor lodgings and coarse food for debtors for days and months, and it may be years, when a law repealing imprisonment for debt, or an insolvent law, may be enacted, which would liberate the debtor, and save the country the expense? Why should the mass of the people incur taxes, to appease the inhumanity of heartless creditors? Would it not be better to liberate, or allow the debtor ms morely earn wherewith to pay his debts, and add by his industry to the wealth of the State, by his industry to the wealth of the State, able Farce of SLASHER AND CRASHER. liberate, or allow the debtor his liberty to phere, to pine away without the comforts of home or the consolation of friends, yet an always increasing expense to the State? No argument can be made to excuse imprisonment for simple debt. The most enterprising citizen may be unfortunate in business; yet here, where we want such stirring men to give life and vigor to trade and industry, we tell them that we will treat them as rebels are treated. Be successful, and we will welcome you and crown you with laurels. Be unsuccessful, and you with ladies. De disaccessiul, and you must either escape from the country, or be doomed to a dungeon. Out upon such barbarous laws; and upon a govern-ment that sees such evils but makes no effort to remove them.

INCORPORATION .- Every day things occur NEW showing the necessity for the incorporation of the town. On Government street new buildings are being erected beyond the line fixed upon by the first surveys. Thus, between Fort and Yates streets we have half a dozen indentations, instead of a straight Pictures may be obtained in any style of the Art. line. Then the old magazine stands in the |Likenesses on Patent Leather, $1 Each. middle of Bastion street, and it itself is in a wretched condition. Yet there is no authority to improve it. Besides, two and threestory wooden houses of the most inflammable nature are going up in the centre of the town. One fine building of this character is now being constructed on Langley street. Had we a Town Council, an ordinance might be passed limiting all wooden houses to one story within certain boundaries in the centre of the town. As it is, such buildings only add to the danger of conflagration. When are we to be incorporated? After we are burnt up? or when the street sides are as crooked as rams' horns?

The people of Oregon are astir. The hone and sinew, the pack-trains and the produce of that State have started for the British Columbia mines. The newspapers are filled with accounts of the richness and extent of the placers of Cariboo and Rock Creek. The surplus population has hailed the first fine day in February as the harbinger of an early spring, and shouldering their blankets and utensils, are off for the new El Doradoes of our sister Colony. The indications are that the immigration from Oregon this year will be large-much larger than that of last year. The Portland Times, in an article headed "Are the Northern mines a humbug?" mentions the following packtrains that have started, or are about starting, for British Columbia from the Dalles:

ing, for British Columbia from the Dalles:
Smith & Howitt's train, 27 mules, freighted for Cariboo by Price & Miller; Mr. Parker's train of 40 mules, freighted by Loebe & Co., for Rock Creek; Cyrus Smith's train of 25 mules, freighted for Rock Creek; Palmer & Jacob's train of 25 anirals, freighted by themselves for Rock Creek; The following trains are now about to start: Woodward & Co., 40 mules, bound for Rock Creek; Woodbury & Co.'s train, 20 animals, about ready, bound for Rock Creek; Lowry & Peterson's train, 30 animals, freighted by Capt. Arrival of the Otter.

The steamer Otter, Capt. Mouat, arrived at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon from Fraser river. She brought about 20 passengers and $10,000 in gold dust.

The news is meagre. The report of the inablity of the Fort Yale to reach Yale was unfounded, she steamed up in good style. The Maria was not aground at Murderer's Bar, as before stated.

The river steamers, carrying full freights, left New Westminster for the different towns on Thursday. Large numbers of miners continue to pass up the river both lieve he will get it. by steamers and small boats.

Mining operations on the lower Fraser have recommenced with a fair show of suc-

A man named Kane stole a trunk belonging to a lady, on the last trip up. He was arrested and sent to the chain gang for six

The Governor was at New Westminster yesterday morning.

Passengers are now carried from Douglas to Cayoosh for three dollars each.

Governor Douglas has donated 45 acres of land to the people of New Westminster as a park, race-course, etc.

The following items are from the British Columbian of the 28th inst:

Columbian of the 28th inst:

At Douglas snow fell 12 inches deep on Saturday last. The river is lower than it has been before this winter, and the steamers have a great deal of trouble in consequence in getting up. Several trains have left Cayoosh for Alexander and Quesnelle, laden with general merchandise, and fears are entertained that many animals have perished. Several whisky-sellers have been arrested during the past week, in the vicinity of Sumas, Chilliwack, and Harrison river. This is as it should be, and steps should have been dealing in spirits with the Indians on this river for two years past, endangering the lives of travellers. The winds on Harrison lake have been very severe during the past week, rendering the severe during the past week, rendering the lake almost impassable.

The Nicolaus river, which empties into the Thompson 40 miles from its confluence with the Fraser, is reported to be navigable for steamers a distance of 200 miles from its mouth, thus making steam navigation to mouth, thus making steam navigation to within some 40 miles of the Forks of Quesnelle. This information, if correct, is very important, as it will shorten the distance to the Cariboo country, and reduce the land carriage to a few miles.

There are in this city 40 children, one moiety of which are over, and the other un-der five years of age. Thirty-one white, eight mulatto and one colored.

The schooner H. C. Page is now dis-charging a cargo of bricks and lime for Har-ris & Co.'s fireproof warehouse.

THE SAN JUAN HARBOR GOLD MINES .-A party arrived from these new mines day before yesterday, and left again yesterday with provisions, for their claims. They report that they have succeeded in finding dirt that prospects twenty cents to the pan, and that the diggings, so far as their researches extend, are extensive. The gold is found on the bars of the San Juan creek, which makes into the harbor of that name, about ten miles this side of Cape Flattery. We have on various occasions during last winter published vague accounts, that had reached us from these new diggings, but confess that we have not heretofore placed much faith in them, as the authority was Indian. Now, however, as the report comes to us from reliable white men, we have every reason to believe them correct. The miners at present on the creek are all Cornishmen.

THE "EMILY HARRIS."-This nev propeller took her departure at 12 o'clock, yesterday for Nanaimo. She took six passengers and ten tons of freight. Quite a number of persons gathered to witness her departure - considerable interest having been excited among our people from the fact that the engines as well as the hull were constructed here. She made poor time in leaving the barbor; but as the machinery is new, and consequently stiff, it would be very fast. Each person, in purchasing a ticket, is not only entitled to an admittance to the performance, but also to a share in the prizes. A number of applications have been made to the manager for tickets with certain numbers-the icquirers alleging that they had dreamed they owuld prove the successful ones. One young lady has secured no less than six, the numbers of every one of which she asserted that she dreamed about for four successive nights.

A New FIELD .- The growing demand for Nanaimo eval at San Francisco, and the large number of vessels arriving there monthly, has contributed to the advancement of that town. The attention of business men has recently been directed to that quarter, and yesterday three merchants of this city left on the Emily Harris with the intention of establishing branches of their business there.

BENEFIT OF MR J. B. ROBINSON .- This evening Mr. J. B. Robinson, well known as an artiste of great talent, and highly popular with our theatre-goers, will take a benefit at Moore's Musical Hall. "Slasher and Crasher," a most amusing play; a favorite ballad, by Miss Susan Robinson; the negro burlesque of "The Dentist," by Mr. Raymond; the farce of "Lend me Five Shillings;" a tancy dance by Miss Susan; and that laughable and side-splitting farce, "Box and Cox;" are all on the bills of the evening. The beneficiary and his talented family, during their lengthened stay with us, have contributed greatly towards introducing the Drama in all its purity in Victoria. He deserves, for his energy on past occasions, an overflowing house, and we be-RENCOUNTER .- Yesterday, about noon, a lawyer and an M.D., both well known in this community, met at the corner of Fort and Government streets, where some words of an unknown import passed between them, and the doctor was felled to the ground by a blow from the lawyer. A friend of the M. D. interfered, when he too was knocked down by the lawyer. A fight ensued, and several severe blows were given by the legal gentleman to his antagonists, who finally retired, leaving him master of the field. A large crowd were drawn together by the af-A warrant, we learn, will be issued for the arrest of the victor.

THE SQUAW MURDER CASE .- Bernard Donahue, accused of having broken the neck of the Stickeen squaw, on Sunday night last, was up before the police magistrate yesterday morning for examination. Two witnesses (Indians) deposed that the woman accompanied Donahue to his house on Sunday night about 10 o'clock, and that about 12 o'clock she was found lying dead near the house. The further hearing of the case was postponed till Monday morning next at 10 o'clock. Mr. Ring appeared for the defence.

The yacht Templar, Capt. Fitzstubbs, arrived yesterday evening from Nootka Sound. Capt. E. H. King is bound up on the schooner Saucy Lass, and will be here in a day or two.

The steamer Santa Cruz left yesterday afternoon at four o'clock for Portland. She carried away a few passengers and a small amount of freight.

Letter from Fort Hope. FORT HOPE, February 23, 1861.

EDITOR BRITISH COLONIST .- Since I left Victoria I have been sojourning at Fort Hope, with the exception of an excursion to Similkameen, in company with a couple of gentlemen, one of whom undertook to "navigate" a Tobogan or sledge over the Cascade mountains. Being fond of excitement and always on the alert for something new, I embarked in the somewhat novel and laborious undertaking of dragging the aforesaid "machine" over the snow-clad peaks of the Cascades freighted with three hundred pounds of provisions. I harnessed myself to the load with ropes and sundry other fixtures and hauled and pulled like a Trojan, occasionally stopping to get my wind, for one entire day-making a distance of 15 miles, when we abandoned the " machine" on account of a heavy snow-storm, which lasted for three days and nights in that uninviting region of snow. On the fourth day, finding it impossible to proceed farther with the sledge, we concluded to return to Fort Hope, where we arrived on the 21st inst., after an absence of eight days, making a distance of only 35 miles from Hope. In regard to keeping the trail open for animals during the winter months, it cannot be done for less than $10,000, and it is not be done for less than $10,000, and it is doubtful whether it can be done at any price. The good folk of Fort Hope will have to bido their time and wait patiently for the glowing rays of Old Sol to remove the snow—that great barrier to their prosperity. However, the people at this place manifest a disposition to do all in their power to open the trail. They held, not long since, a couple of meetings to devise ways and means for that purpose, and I am glad to say, for the credit and enterprise of we have no doubt that with slight improvements she will rank in point of speed with any other propeller in these waters. The Kmily Harris will bring a full cargo of coal on her return trip, which will be about Tuesday next.

Sheldon's Gift Entertainment.—
The tickets for this enterprise are selling and the propeller in the waters. The disbursement of the funds was placed in the hands of a committee consisting of Messics. McDonald, Chisholm, Hotchins, Landvoigt, and Justice O'Reilly. What they will eventually do, deponent sayeth not.

There has been since I first passed over There has been since I first passed over the trail in the early part of the winter, about 100 persons over it, including Indians, who have done much towards keeping it open for footmen. The trail is now passable for foot travel, and will be kept open until animals can pass over it, which will be some time in June—not sooner. A train of Indians statted over packed with from 50 pounds to 100 pounds of provisions each, for the relief of their red skinned brethren, whom they represent as being in a starving condition. Some of these have already returned for further supplies.

REPORTED BATTLE WITH INDIANS.

REPORTED BATTLE WITH INDIANS.

February 25th.—Last night an Indian arrived from Similkameen, who reports that a difficulty had occurred and a fight took place between a party of Americans and Indians, somewhere near Fort Colville, on the Columbia river. I could not learn the precise locality. The Indian runner states that the Americans killed six Indians—three men and three women—and threw their bodies into the river.

S.

Change of Owners.—We published yesterday that certain steamers of the Pacific Mail Steamship Conpany's line had been sold to parties in New York. We should have also included in the list the steamship Columbia, sailing on the route between San Francisco and this place. There has also been a change in the prices of passage and freight between these points. How long the present rates will remain we know not, or what induced the return to the old prices. But, while we are not disposed to cavil at the business of the steamship Company, yet we can but express our conviction that an advance in the price of passage at this time is an impediment to eminigration from California to Oregon and Washington, and will have a tendency to prevent the incoming of miners to the northern mines. We are to be benefitted materially by cheap rates of passage to Oregon, and if these Companies can be content with moderate profits, then Oregon will become rapidly settled with a mining population.—Portland Times, 23d.
